Connectors

The connectors automatically retrieve and display a set of data that has already been entered on your website . In practice, for example, suppose you need to continue to enter news on your website on a regular basis, then a connector can automatically retrieve these news items and display them in your application. The interest is twofold: no risk of errors when re-entering these news, and as soon as the connector works: no action is to be done in the application.

Conditions of use of the connectors

The use of the connectors is conditioned by :

- The existence of a WordPress type website
- A regular job of entering identical data on this site (such as news) that must be automatically duplicated in your application.
- Some technical parameters related to your website

In order to set up a connector and whatever questions you may have about it, we will be there to help you.
